How Your Perimeter Pest Treatment Works

Perimeter Pest Treatments Target Creepy Crawlers Like:

Ants Spiders Cockroaches Centipedes Stinkbugs

Target these pests before they move indoors. A protective barrier is applied to your home's perimeter to both prevent entry and address potential nesting areas, focusing on hotspots like:

- Doorways
- Windows
- Spigots
- Seams in siding*
- Seams in eaves and fascia*
- Outdoor lighting fixtures*
- Foundation cracks*

Perimeter Pest Management is a Team Effort

These steps help keep outside pests from setting up camp in your home:

Seal Cracks & Openings

Yes, bugs are small. This means the smallest crack is like an open door for bugs. Inspect your screens, windows, and doors for cracks and holes, then seal any you may find. New weather stripping around your exterior doors keeps out drafts and bugs, too.

Watch the Kitchen

You're not the only one who enjoys a late-night kitchen snack - bugs do, too. Store food in tightly-sealed containers and purchase small packages that can be used quickly. Clean up spilled food or drinks and don't forget about cleaning up after pets.

Stay Dry

Bugs want not just food, but water, too. Fix leaky faucets, drains, and pipes. Make sure your washer & dryer, dishwasher, and air conditioner are all working properly. If you have areas in your home that tend to always be damp, run a dehumidifier.

Keep It Clean

Good housekeeping always helps to keep bugs away. Empty trash cans regularly and vacuum weekly. Use a drain cleaner to clean your sink and bathtub drains where drain flies like to live.

Keep the Outside Debris-Free

Remove weeds and plant debris from landscape beds, which can harbor pests. Prune plants so they are not crowding around your home's foundation. Piles of yard waste and wood stacks are also good hiding places for bugs that might try to move indoors, so remove waste and inspect any outside items for bugs and egg sacks before bringing them indoors.

Eliminate the Bugs You Have

Act as soon as possible to stop a small bug problem from becoming a big bug problem inside. The old-fashioned shoe method works for spiders. Bait is more efficient for ants, who find food and return it to their colonies. Exercise caution and follow labels when using pest control products.
