Dear Marie,

I am writing to express my sincere appreciation for the exceptional level of service, professionalism, and support that you and the Voyager Marine Alliance Group team have provided to Endless Summer over the past several years.

Our relationship with Voyager began following an extensive period of cruising after the yacht's launch. We undertook a Pacific journey that took us from Alaska through the South Pacific and ultimately to Indonesia, before eventually returning to Fort Lauderdale some four years and more than 80,000 nautical miles later. As you can imagine, after that amount of time and distance at sea, we returned with a substantial list of electronic, communications, navigation, and systems-related issues requiring attention.

At that point, finding the right marine electronics company was extremely important to me. We needed considerably more than a company capable of replacing components or troubleshooting isolated faults. We needed a technical partner with the knowledge, resources, persistence, and professionalism to work through a wide variety of complex issues aboard a large yacht.

After meeting you personally and discussing our requirements, I quickly gained confidence that Voyager was that company. More importantly, everything you and your team have done in the years since has reinforced that initial impression.

From the outset, I have found Voyager's scheduling and organization to be excellent, communication clear and dependable, and your technicians knowledgeable, professional, and exceptionally tenacious when troubleshooting difficult problems. Some of the issues we presented were far from straightforward, yet your technicians consistently remained engaged until the cause was identified and an effective solution implemented.

As the saying goes, there are no problems, only challenges, and your team has demonstrated that philosophy repeatedly. Whether dealing with a relatively simple service item or a complicated fault requiring considerable investigation, I have always had confidence that the Voyager team would see the job through properly.

I have also greatly appreciated the transparency and organization of your billing. The clear manner in which labor, materials, and individual tasks are documented removes much of the ambiguity that can sometimes accompany technical service invoices. This has made reviewing and approving Voyager's accounts straightforward and has contributed significantly to the trust we have developed in our working relationship.

Perhaps the best recommendation I can give is that, although no captain particularly enjoys having to call a service company because something aboard the yacht is not functioning as it should, it has genuinely always been a pleasure to welcome you and your technicians aboard Endless Summer. Your team arrives with a positive attitude, works well alongside the vessel's crew, respects the yacht and our operational requirements, and, most importantly, gets the job done.

I would have no hesitation whatsoever in recommending Voyager Marine Alliance Group to another captain, owner, management company, or yacht requiring a highly capable and dependable marine electronics and communications partner. Voyager has earned our confidence through years of consistent performance rather than simply through promises, and that distinction is important to me.

Marie, please extend my personal thanks to everyone in the office and to all of the technicians who have supported us over the years. The crew and I sincerely appreciate the relationship we have developed with you and your team, and I look forward to Voyager's continued involvement with Endless Summer as our future needs arise.

Wishing you and the entire Voyager team continued success in the year ahead and well beyond.

Kind regards,

Tony Hodgson
Captain – Endless Summer
