

The Dialogue.Dance Pocket Guide

A three-round path to deciding if they are worth your time.

THE SIMPLE PROCESS

You invite. They ask first. You answer and reciprocate. Repeat until each of you has asked and answered three meaningful questions. Then mutually decide: Miss or Meet.

1 NOTICE They choose something meaningful in your profile and ask about it. You answer with care, then ask about something meaningful in theirs.	2 FOLLOW Each of you follows what was actually said or opens another meaningful thread. Share enough of yourself to make it a dialogue.	3 DISCOVER Explore one more thing that matters. Then decide together whether you want to meet, continue briefly, or make a kind miss.
--	---	---

USE THE WORDS

SHORT + SIMPLE	WARM + PLAYFUL
Can we skip smalltalk? I invite you to a Dialogue.Dance. Ask me something meaningful to you about my profile. I'll answer and ask you something in return. We'll repeat until we've each asked and answered three questions, then decide: Miss or Meet.	Happy weekend! Can we skip smalltalk? I invite you to a Dialogue.Dance. Ask me about one thing in my profile meaningful to you. I'll reply and reciprocate. We'll repeat three times, then see whether it feels like a miss or a meet.

MEET	MISS	MORE TIME
"I've liked this conversation. Would you be up for coffee or a short video call this week?"	"Thank you for the conversation. I don't think we're the right fit, but I'm glad we talked."	"I'm enjoying this. I'd like to talk a little longer before deciding about meeting."

Keep your usual dating safety practices. An invitation is never an obligation. Either person can decline, pause, or stop at any time.

Fantabulous relationships come from Great Dialogue. Dialogue.Dance | SchoolForLove.com