Lace Is Where a Wig Fools Everyone — or Gives Itself Away.

HD, transparent, 13×4, 5×5, closure, frontal — these words get thrown around like you're supposed to already know them. Most women buy the wrong lace simply because nobody explained it.

So let me make lace make sense. By the end of this guide you'll know exactly which lace, which size, and which construction matches your face, your skin tone, and your lifestyle — and you'll never overpay for the wrong unit again.

This is the lace conversation I have in my chair. Now it's yours.

CHAPTER ONE

Closures vs Frontals

This is the first fork in every wig decision. A closure covers one parting area at the top of your head. A frontal runs ear to ear and recreates your entire hairline — so you can part anywhere and pull it back.

Closure

Simpler, faster, less hair needed, lower maintenance and more budget-friendly. Trade-off: parting is limited to that one area.

Frontal

Part anywhere, style off the face, pull it into a pony. Trade-off: more upkeep, more cost, and careful application.

"Closure for easy everyday. Frontal for the woman who loves to switch it up."

✦ EBONY'S TIP

If you mostly wear a middle or side part and want low-maintenance, a closure is plenty — and your wallet will thank you. Save the frontal for versatility.

CHAPTER TWO

HD vs Transparent Lace

Same wig, different lace, completely different "is that real?" The lace is what melts into your skin — or doesn't.

HD Lace

The thinnest, most undetectable lace — it disappears into the skin for the most natural hairline. Premium price, and more delicate, so handle with care.

Transparent Lace

Sheer and adaptable, blends across most skin tones at a friendlier price. Slightly more visible up close than HD, but gorgeous when laid right.

There's also Swiss lace — the durable industry standard that balances realism and longevity.

✦ EBONY'S TIP

Match the lace to your skin tone, and tint it if needed. HD wins for close-ups and photos; transparent is the smart everyday value. Either way, a clean melt matters more than the label.

CHAPTER THREE

Closure Sizes: 4x4 • 5x5 • 6x6

Closure sizes are just the parting area, measured in inches. More inches = more room to part and more natural-looking scalp.

- ♦ 4x4 — the classic. A 4" x 4" parting area; perfect for a clean middle or side part. Most affordable.
- ♦ 5x5 — the sweet spot. Extra parting room for a more believable, flexible part.
- ♦ 6x6 — the widest closure. The most parting freedom before you step up to a frontal.

"Bigger lace = more freedom and more cost. Pick the size your styles actually need."

♦ EBONY'S TIP

If you can't decide, a 5x5 gives you most of a frontal's parting flexibility with a closure's simplicity and price. It's my go-to recommendation.

CHAPTER FOUR

Frontals: 13X4 VS 13X6

Frontals are ear to ear — the "13" is 13 inches across your hairline. The second number is how far back the lace goes, and that's what changes your styling.

13X4

13" across, 4" deep. Part toward the front, gorgeous for everyday down styles. The most popular, budget-friendly frontal.

13X6

13" across, 6" deep. A deeper parting space for off-the-face styles, deep side parts, and that pulled-back ponytail illusion.

✦ EBONY'S TIP

Love a deep part or wearing your hair away from your face? Spend up for the 13x6. If you mostly wear it down, a 13x4 looks just as flawless for less.

CHAPTER FIVE

Lace by Lifestyle & Care

The "best" lace is the one that fits your life and that you'll keep flawless. Here's how to choose — and protect it.

Match lace to your life

- ✦ Active, low-maintenance, everyday: a closure in transparent lace.
- ✦ Glam, versatile, loves to restyle: a frontal, HD if you're often photographed.

Keep your lace flawless

- ✦ Tint/match the lace to your skin and lay it with a clean, light melt — less glue lasts longer and looks better.
- ✦ Cleanse the lace and your edges after each wear to avoid buildup and lifting.
- ✦ Bleach knots gently (or let me) — over-bleaching shreds delicate HD lace.

✦ EBONY'S TIP

Not sure which lace is "you"? Book a fitting — I'll match the lace, size and melt to your face and hairline in person, so it's right the first time.
