

EQUIPPING WARRIORS IN HARM'S WAY

EOD Micro HAL Kit

The EOD Gear Micro Hook and Line (HAL) Kit is designed to support Explosive Ordnance Disposal (EOD) technicians, bomb squads, and tactical operators conducting remote handling and manipulation operations involving suspected explosive hazards. The compact kit provides operators with the tools required to perform controlled remote pulls, reposition suspicious objects, and access containers or devices while maintaining critical stand-off distance.

The Micro HAL Kit enables operators to conduct hook-and-line operations, allowing remote manipulation of suspicious packages, containers, or components encountered during tactical responses. This compact configuration allows bomb technicians to rapidly deploy remote handling capability when a full hook-and-line kit is unnecessary or impractical.

The Micro HAL Kit is housed in an EOD Gear Berry Compliant rip-away pouch designed for rapid deployment and modular organization. The pouch features a MOLLE attachment panel allowing secure mounting to tactical gear while enabling quick removal when needed.

An internal Velcro spine supports modular configuration. The Line/SSE Bag and Tool Panel attach via Velcro and can be removed or repositioned depending on mission requirements.

All kits are assembled by EOD Gear under an ISO 9001:2015-certified Quality Management System to ensure consistent configuration and operational reliability. The Micro HAL Kit is available for procurement through the EOD Gear GSA Schedule.

Kits are supplied in durable tactical pack configurations suitable for operational deployment. Configuration modifications and agency-specific kit configurations are available upon request.
