Post-Procedure Expectations and Care: "Following your microblading session, you can expect mild redness and sensitivity in the treated area. This is normal and should subside within a few days. It's important to keep the area clean and dry. Avoid touching, scratching, or wetting your brows for at least 7-10 days post-procedure. We will provide detailed aftercare instructions to ensure proper healing. Some common complications include infection, pigment fading or spreading, and allergic reactions, though these are rare when post-care instructions are followed properly

Statement on the Permanent Nature of Body Art: "Please be aware that while microblading is considered a semi-permanent form of body art, the results can last for several years and should be considered permanent. Factors such as skin type, lifestyle, and sun exposure can affect the longevity and appearance of your microblading. Touch-ups may be necessary to maintain the desired look. As with any tattoo, there is a commitment to a long-lasting change in appearance.
