READ-ALoud STAGE INTRODUCTION

Approx. 60–75 seconds

Our next speaker knows what it means to build from the ground up.

Isaac Wambua was born in a small village in Kenya and raised by a mother who could not read or write. From those beginnings, he learned the value of resilience, responsibility, faith, and the power of developing people.

That journey eventually led him into engineering, manufacturing leadership, entrepreneurship, and the work he is known for today: helping leaders and organizations build systems that create clarity, ownership, and sustainable growth.

Isaac is the Founder of Dynamo Methods, a five-time bestselling author, and a speaker whose work equips executives, managers, founders, and teams to lead with more capacity and less dependence on constant rescue.

His books include:

Now That I'm a Manager, What Do I Do Next?

From Chaos to Control

The Dynamo Business Blueprint

The Multiplier Leader: How Great Leaders Multiply People, Purpose, and Impact — most recent

Through his work, leaders have reduced executive workload, improved sales performance, removed decision-making bottlenecks, and built teams that take greater ownership.

At the center of Isaac's message is something deeper: leadership is not about being needed more. It is about building people who can carry the mission forward.

Please welcome Isaac Wambua.
