Quality relationships catapult you into destiny

LET ME EXPLAIN

01

They ground you

Quality relationships ground you in your beliefs and values and remind you of what truly matters. When life presents adversity or opportunities avail themselves, the decisions you make are firm because they are rooted in principles that your trusted circle help to reinforce.

02

They challenge you

The quality of your relationships can often be measured by how much (or little) you grow as a result of the relationships you have. Are you inspired, challenged, and supported in your development, ideas, and goals? If they never remind you that you can be, do, give, and have more, they they are holding you back. They are roadblocks – not friends.

03

They're Not Jealous

One of the subtle signs of incompatible relationships is unhealthy jealousy from your friend, spouse, colleague, or relative. Healthy jealousy might inspire them to want to grow. Unhealthy jealousy will provoke them to stop YOU from growing. They stunt your development, tarnish your name, and recruit others to participate in the same.

Conclusion

Your life is shaped by the company you keep. You cannot become all that you can without the support of quality people along your journey in life. Your responsibility is to ensure that you are a quality person and that you surround yourself with the same.

"If you want to go fast, go alone. If you want to go far, go together." ~African Proverb
