Our story starts with our prophet, Muhammad, the greatest man.

He was honest, kind, and giving.
He was loved throughout the land.

He brought us all Islam,
and he taught us the best way to live.

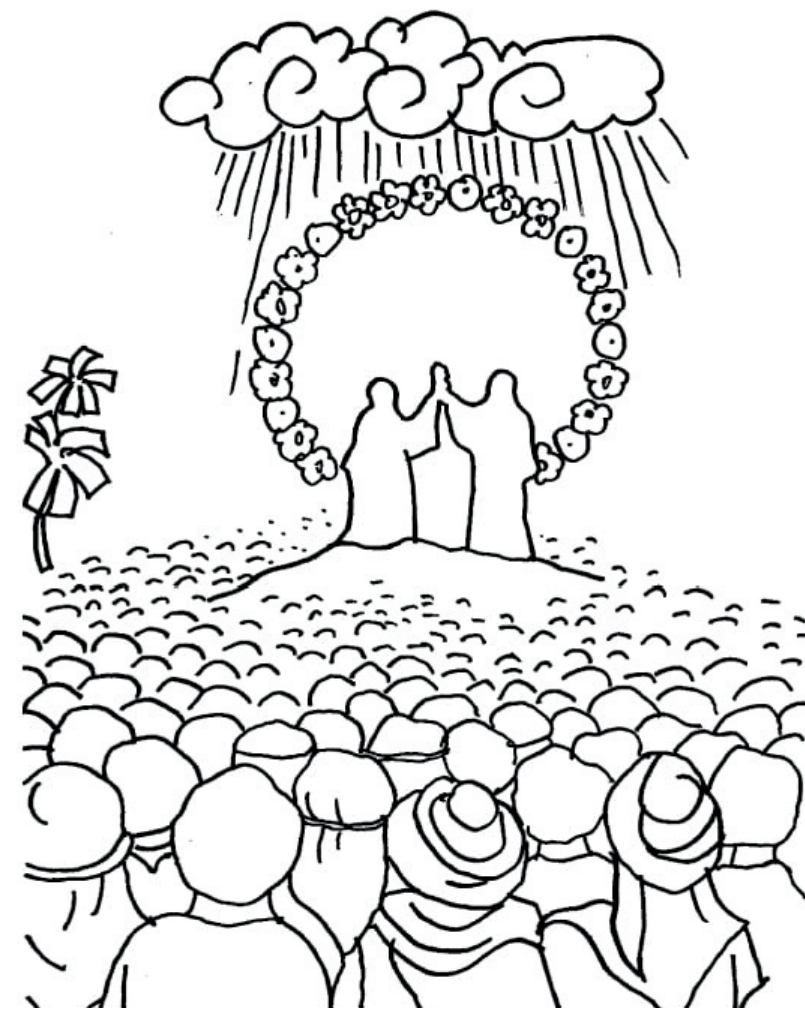

He gave us God's book, the Qur'an.
It was the best gift to give.

One day the Prophet told everyone,
"Come all, gather around."

He stood up and raised Ali's hand high, way up above the ground.

He spoke out loud so all could hear,
and stood tall so all could see.

"If you love Allah and me,
then from now on follow Ali."

Prophet Muhammad's closest friend, was his young cousin Ali.

Ali was smart, strong, and brave.
He was kind to everybody.

Our Prophet raised young Ali,
and he taught him all that he knew.

Ali was wise and he was gentle.
He loved kids just like you.

So Ali became the leader,
and after him came his sons.

One leader after the other,
taught grown-ups and little ones.

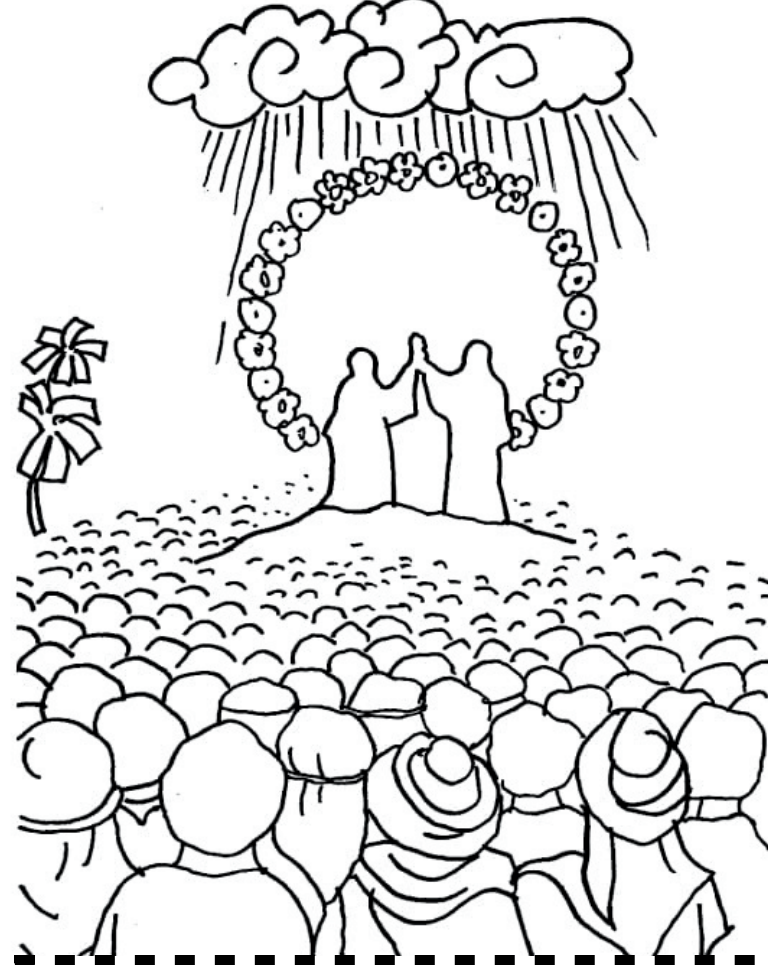

So we remember Ghadir,
and we celebrate it each year.

As we wait for the last leader,
Imam Mahdi, to appear.
