Questions for Personal Reflection and Group Discussion

1. Read Titus 1:1-4.
Who is this letter from and how does the author describe his job or purpose?

What impact is the letter's message intended to have on those who read or hear it?

To whom is this letter being sent and how does the author describe him? What does this description tell you about their relationship?

2. Read Titus 1:5-9 and Matthew 6:21.
What responsibilities did Titus have in his role on the island of Crete?

What kind of men was Titus instructed to look for to serve as elders?

Why is it important that these character qualities be evident in the lives of those who follow Christ?

Are these character qualities important for leaders only? Why or why not?

How does the way a person lives – the way they treat others or spend money or use their time -– more honestly reflect what they believe than the words they say?

How does the way you live back up what you say you believe? Where is there a gap between your belief and your behavior?

3. Read Titus 1:10-14.
What action is necessary when confronting false teaching and what is the motive or reason for taking that action?

If the goal of confrontation is to strengthen the faith of another, to restore them to spiritual health, what attitude or posture would be important to maintain?

4. Read Titus 1:15-16 and Luke 5:31.
Paul says it's possible to claim to know God and still deny Him by the way we live. Is there an area of your life where you have yet to fully surrender to Him? What step toward health in that area of your life will you take this week?
