

Culture Center FAQ

Note: Due to state regulations, Culture Centers are not permitted in New York. Please consult your Designated Managing Broker (DMB) for state-specific requirements.

What is a Culture Center?

A Culture Center is an agent-led space where eXp agents can connect, collaborate, and grow together. It's designed to bring an optional, in-person community into eXp's cloud-based model.

Is this an eXp office?

No. Culture Centers aren't traditional broker offices, they're agent-led environments focused on community, collaboration, and professional growth.

Do I have to be part of a specific team or rev share group to participate?

No. You don't need to be part of any specific team or revenue share group to participate. Culture Centers are built to support the broader eXp agent community, and each Culture Center leader may shape how they welcome and include agents in their space.

Can teams participate in a Culture Center?

Yes. Teams are welcome to participate and use the space for collaboration, training, and connection, alongside individual agents.

Who runs the Culture Center?

Each Culture Center is led by eXp agents. That means the experience, energy, and offerings can vary based on the leader's vision and the needs of the local agent community.

What can I expect when I participate?

That depends on the location. Many Culture Centers offer things like training, masterminds, coworking, networking, and collaborative work sessions, but each one is a little different based on what the leader chooses to provide.

Are Culture Centers open to all eXp agents?

In most cases, yes. Culture Centers are intended to create community beyond teams and organizations. How access and participation are structured may vary by location and leadership.

Is participation required?

No. Participation is completely optional, it's there if and when you want the added connection, support, and in-person collaboration.

Are there any fees to participate?

Some Culture Centers may have a simple, flat participation structure, such as a per-transaction fee. If so, details will always be clearly communicated so you can decide what works best for your business. If a per-transaction fee is selected, the fee will be collected through eXp and applied at the Agent level.

Are Culture Centers compliant with eXp policies and state laws?

Yes. All Culture Centers operate in alignment with eXp policies and applicable state regulations, and are reviewed through the appropriate broker channels.
